

PROMINENT WOMEN ON CAMPAIGN TRAIN OF HUGHES ALLIANCE

Left to right: Mrs. William C. Demorest, Mrs. Rheta Childs Dorr, Miss Maud Miner, Mrs. Charles S. Whitman, Mrs. Travis H. Whitney, Mrs. Charles E. Hughes, Mrs. Wm. R. Wilcox, Birch Helms and Gov. W. C. Forbes.

Here are some of the prominent persons who were aboard the women's campaign train for Hughes as it pulled out of New York Monday. Mrs. Hughes will not be aboard the train during the trip, but she was present to wish a pleasant journey to the women who will tour twenty-eight states during October and the first days of November in behalf of the Republican ticket.

CHARGE OF EXTRAVAGANCE IS ANSWERED BY HATFIELD

Governor Pulls the Records on John Cornwell, Democratic Candidate.

CHARLESTON, Oct. 7.—The following letter has been addressed by Governor Hatfield to the Huntington Advertiser:

"Charleston, W. Va., October 5, 1916.

"Editor Huntington Advertiser,

"Huntington, W. Va.

"My dear Sir:

"In connection with the cartoon published in your newspaper there appears a statement that $1,500,000 additional appropriation had been expended in my administration, this representing expenditures made in excess of the Glasscock administration.

"For the information of your readers permit to give to you, with the request that the same be published, a detailed statement of the improvements at the various state institutions that have been made or are now in progress, representing the sum total in expenditures of $1,250,000.

New Science Hall.

"Of this amount Marshall College, a Huntington institution, received $65,000 for the erection of a new science hall.

"The Huntington state hospital was given a new building, the appropriation for the same being $20,000.

"Eighty-five thousand dollars of the $1,250,000 spent upon the institutions has gone to Huntington. I desire to ask the Advertiser in all fairness, would it eliminate the new science hall at Marshall College? And would it eliminate the new building at the Huntington state hospital that is necessary to take care of the crowded condition prevailing at present?

"Does it say that this money was extravagantly expended and that the improvements should not have been made?

"Is that what I am to understand from the implied criticism as to the expenditure of more than one million dollars over the expenditures of the Glasscock administration?

No Apology to Offer.

"I have stood for the development of our institutions upon a plane befitting the dignity and honor of the state. I have no apologies to offer, but I do object to the misrepresentation that the money has been wrongfully used.

"Economy in the strictest sense has been the watchword of this administration; but in the expenditures that have been made the state has realized dollar for dollar, and its institutions have been brought to that point where they are no longer merely houses of detention, but are institutions where humanitarianism and convenience are given consideration."

I submit the following statement showing the expenditures for new buildings erected at state institutions during my administration:

West Virginia Industrial School for Boys, two cottages	15,000.00

The National View

Mr. Wilson's Position.—Col. Roosevelt, at the Union League reception to Governor Hughes, which was widely advertised because the colonel and Judge Taft met there and shook hands, described Mr. Wilson's position. Referring to Mr. Wilson's declaration of September 30, that the election of Mr. Hughes would mean war, Mr. Roosevelt said: "Mr. Wilson's speech of last Saturday was an invitation to foreign powers to do whatever they wished because if he were in power they need not be afraid. Take his sentence about keeping us out of war and those about 'prompt challenge and resistance.' Taken together, one group of sentences is the weasel and the other the egg. It is open to Mr. Wilson which is the weasel and which the egg. But one of them sucks all the meaning out of the other. If Mr. Wilson's speech expressed his real convictions, then by 'prompt challenge and resistance' he means tapping his adversary on the wrist. As Mr. Hughes has pointed out this evening, Mr. Wilson is praised for the most part by people whose shoulders slope like a champagne bottle, by people with timid hearts and quivering voices, who say that he has kept us out of war. Has he kept us out of war? He has put us into three little wars that I can name."

Tribute to Hughes.—Col. Roosevelt paid high tribute to Mr. Hughes in his little speech at the Union League Club. He said, in part: "If Mr. Hughes is made president, we can count with the greatest certainty that not the group of the greatest capitalists in the land, not yet the group of the greatest labor leaders in the land will be able to get one thing at Washington by threats, by duress, by misstatement, or in any other way, save by showing before a competent tribunal the justice of their demands, and I was glad to hear Mr. Hughes emphatically point out that the question was not an eight-hour question at all. It had nothing to do with the eight-hour question; it was simply a question of an advance of wages."

and that was all it was. I believe emphatically in the eight-hour law as an ideal toward which we must work, but I believe you must take into account the type of work to be done."

Taft's Views.—Ex-President Taft paid tribute to the Wilson Mexican policy in these words: "Have we been kept out of war? Is the treatment that we have accorded Mexico one that insures peace? Had we allowed Mexico to work out her own salvation, as President Wilson told us we should in his Indianapolis speech, we should not be responsible, as we are now, for the conditions and the anarchy which prevail in Mexico. But we did not do that, and when the European war is over—if not before—the policy we have pursued in Mexico is going to follow us, and we will have to answer for our intermeddling, our determination to punish one person, and to dictate to the Mexican people whom they might have to rule over them and whom they might not. But even in so far as Mexico is concerned, I do not consider that Mr. Wilson has kept us out of war."

Fearful for Her Future.—A member of the National College League vouches for the truth of this story. There is a certain sweet-faced old lady whose annual vacation is a trip to Washington, and the chief event thereof a midday "dinner" at the Shoreham. On Tuesdays the members of the cabinet generally lunch together at the Shoreham because of its proximity to the White House. "Walter," said the dear old lady to the head waiter, "this is an especial occasion for me and I want a very good table."

"Certainly, madam," replied that functionary, and ushered her to a table next to that at which the cabinet was lunching. Presently the old lady summoned him.

"Walter," she said timidly, "I don't like this table you have given me at all."

"Why, madam?"

"I don't like the looks of those men at that big table."

CRETE'S REVOLT IS ONE OF MANY

As Up to the Time of Annexation There Were Constant Revolts on Island.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—The present revolt in Crete has occurred almost on the fourth anniversary of the announcement of the island's annexation to Greece, made by the Greek premier on October 14, 1912. Up to that time the Cretans had been in an almost constant state of revolt against Turkish and Egyptian domination for the greater part of the nineteenth and the first decade of the twentieth century. Today's war geography bulletin of the National Geographic Society tells of the resources of this revolt-ridden region.

"Crete and Corsica are practically tied for the distinction of fourth island of the Mediterranean, each having an area somewhat in excess of 3,300 square miles and being surpassed in size by Sicily, Sardinia and Cyprus. But while Corsica has sustained a comparatively inconspicuous role in world history, if one excepts the fact that it was the birthplace of Napoleon, Crete has played a stellar part in human events for more than 4,000 years.

News Notes Of Bristol

BRISTOL, Oct. 7.—One of the biggest and best birthday parties ever to take place in this vicinity was made by Miss Winona Lenora Haney and friends, of Salem Fork creek, Thursday evening, October 5, in honor of the fifty-seventh birthday of her mother, Mrs. Emma C. Haney. The affair was a most successful one from every standpoint. And to say that the surprise was a complete one on the part of Mrs. Haney is saying no more than the truth. She had not the least hint of anything until the crowd descended upon her with profuse congratulations, best wishes and many fine and costly presents. Mere words fail utterly graphically to portray her deep appreciation.

Music for the joyful occasion was furnished by Walter Foreman Lynch, violin; Harvey W. Fletcher, first guitar; Lewis Bailey, second guitar; Mrs. Ottilie Marsh, banjo; and Mrs. Elsie Shahan, organ. And at an appropriate hour exceedingly dainty and rapidly delicious refreshments, consisting of cake, coffee and fruit, were served by the hostess.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Shahan; Mr. and Mrs. Daniel G. Davis and sons, Sewell and Leonard; Mrs. Clara Nay and children; Mrs. Ola Meredith and children; Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Davis and family; Mrs. Nichols and children, Mrs. James R. Riddle, Misses Eva and Blanche Meredith, Pearl and Bertha Nay, Emma and Iola Haney, Nancy Smith and Maud and Ruby Marsh, and Messrs. Lewis Bailey, Harvey W. Fletcher, Walter Foreman Lynch, Dwight Meredith, Blair Davis, William T. Riley and Ottilie Strother.

At a late hour the merry crowd departed for their homes after cordially wishing Mrs. Haney many more happy returns of the day, and the very acme of success in all her undertakings.

Big Snow October 1.

It may probably interest some of the readers of the "leading newspapers of central West Virginia" to note that just forty years ago last Sunday, October 1, (October 1 in the year 1876 being on Sunday also) an exceedingly heavy snow fell during the afternoon and lay on the ground until the following day. And also on October 9, 1906, quite a bit of snow fell here. Many people had not yet gathered their apples and the sight of the trees loaded with fine big red apples and bedecked with snow led some folks to think that "the end of time was right at hand."

Cutting Ensilage.

A company of Cherry Camp run agriculturists including Edward A. Carder, Homer Tate, Allen Law and Edward Tate, have recently purchased an up-to-date ensilage cutter (and a one-mouse-horse-power boiler and engine) and are engaged at this time in filling their silos. That is, they would be, if the o. m. h. p. engine could make things go.

Personal.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius C. Matthey and children were calling on Mr. and Mrs. Hiram D. Lynch a few days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Davis, of Salem Fork creek, were recent guests of Mrs. Amanda Bailey, of Lower Indian run.

Samuel Jenkins, of Big Isaac, was a recent guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Julius C. Matthey.
